Rule 1. Scope of rules; tribal rules primary; no diminishment of tribal sovereignty

- (a) The following rules, known as the rules of appellate procedure for the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals, govern the procedure for appeals to the court of appeals and proceedings before the court of appeals and may be adopted by resolution of each participating pueblo and tribe. The rules shall be cited as SWITCARA #____ (200_).
- (b) In proceedings before the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals, these rules apply in the absence of pueblo or tribal rules or provisions for appellate procedure and may be used to supplement existing pueblo or tribal rules or provisions for appellate procedure. Any conflict between these rules of appellate procedure and procedural rules of a participating pueblo or tribe shall be determined according to the respective pueblo or tribal rules of procedure.
- (c) The following rules are not intended to diminish the authority of nor create an implied waiver of sovereign immunity by any participating pueblo or tribe.

Rule 2. Jurisdiction; composition of the court; chief judge; panels; judges' duties

- (a) The Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals is a court of limited jurisdiction. Jurisdiction is granted expressly by participating pueblo and tribal governments in resolutions and protocols on file with each respective government and the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals.
- (b) The Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals shall consist of a chief judge and all duly selected judges.
- (c) The chief judge shall be elected annually from the members of the Standing Administrative Committee who serve as judges for a pueblo or tribe.
- (d) A single judge appellate panel shall hear and decide each appeal unless the appellate chief judge determines that a multiple judge panel is appropriate or a tribal resolution requires a multiple judge panel. A multiple judge appellate panel shall select a presiding appellate judge as soon as possible after appointment and shall decide the case by majority vote.
- (e) Judges shall avoid conflicts of interest and provide an impartial and independent review of the complete record and file in each case.

Rule 3. Authority of appellate court; matters which may be reviewed; advisory opinions

- (a) The Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals shall hear cases based on the authority granted by pueblo or tribal constitution, legislative authority, or resolution.
- (b) Stipulations by parties as to jurisdiction shall be void.

- (c) Traditional pueblos and tribes adhering to customary law and dispute resolution may request that the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals appoint one judge to review questions of law and render an advisory opinion summarizing current tribal and federal law and discussing the options available to the governing body. No decision or judgment shall be rendered.
- (d) The appellate court may review any final judgment, order, or commitment ending litigation and requiring nothing more than execution of the judgment and giving rise to good faith claims that an error of law or procedure affected the outcome of the case.
- (e) Appeals of final judgments of acquittal by juries in criminal cases shall not be heard.
- (f) A party may seek review of tribal court action which is not final by filing a request for permission to appeal as permitted under rule 13 of these rules.

Rule 4. Determining tribal law; determining questions of law other than tribal law

- (a) On its own motion or that of a party, an appellate panel may certify a question of tribal law which may control the outcome of a case to the court or council of the pueblo or tribe from which the case was appealed. The case may be stayed until the question is decided. Once the response is received, the appellate court shall issue its opinion according to these rules.
- (b) A pueblo or tribal court may certify to the appellate court a question of law which may control the outcome of a case. The appellate chief judge or the chief judge's designate shall assign a panel to determine the question. If the panel determines that the question is one of tribal customary law or there is controlling tribal precedent, the panel shall certify this in writing and advise the lower court that the question cannot be decided by the court of appeals. Otherwise, the panel shall issue an advisory opinion on the question. The panel may request and the lower court shall provide copies of all or any portion of the trial record to assist it in its determination.
- (c) Advisory opinions on certified questions shall not be published unless authorized by the pueblo or tribe.

Rule 5. Scope of or limitations on review

The court of appeals shall limit its review to the record of the lower court proceeding, issues raised in written briefs, and, where required, oral arguments presented to the appellate court. If there is no record, the appeal shall proceed pursuant to rule 17 of these rules. Hearings de novo shall not be allowed before the appellate court.

Rule 6. Attorneys, counselors and advocates; admission to practice in the court of appeals; ethics code; conflict of interest; suspension or disbarment; withdrawing from representing a client

If the attorney cannot submit such a certificate and has been reinstated to practice, the attorney shall submit a written explanation of the circumstances. If the appellate chief judge does not act within 30 days after the submission of the explanation, the attorney shall be permitted to practice before the court of appeals.
- (d) The lower court clerk shall certify the admission and good standing of attorneys, counselors, and advocates to practice before the court from which the appeal has been taken.

If no written code of ethics exists, they shall be bound by the American Bar Association code unless the Southwest Intertribal Court of Appeals develops a code of ethics, in which case it shall supersede the American Bar Association's code. Persons admitted to practice in other jurisdictions are bound also by the ethics codes of those jurisdictions while practicing in the appellate court.

- (a) In matters of immediate concern likely to seriously impact communities or litigants and upon the written request of either party, the court of appeals may suspend or extend schedules to expedite the determination of a case.

The appellate clerk shall advise the appellee of the dates on which briefs are to be filed and, where determined appropriate by the appellate panel, to appear to show cause why the writ should not issue.
