

Native Vote: Strategies for Increasing Native Voter Turnout

- Maggie Toulouse Oliver, NM Secretary of State
- Leon K. Reval, Councilman, Jicarilla Apache Nation

At no time in the history of American democracy has voting been so critically important for tribal communities. The Native Vote is a powerful tool that may direct positive outcomes for tribal healthcare funding and services, educational resources and attainment, social services and behavioral health, public safety, environmental and natural resources, and economic development. This session will highlight the importance of the Native Vote, and more importantly, explore creative and successful ways to increase Native Voter registration, education, and participation.