REBECCA MARTINEZ is the Administrative Manager for the American Indian Law Center and oversees budgets, and the day-to-day administrative and logistical matters. Prior to coming to AILC, Rebecca worked with the State of New Mexico and was the Capital Projects Bureau Chief for the New Mexico Aging and Long-Term Services Department (2012-2019), where she oversaw contract management and compliance for capital outlay appropriations made to local and tribal governments for 230 senior centers statewide. Rebecca was also the Acting Director for the Office of Indian Elder Affairs and served as the Agency's Tribal Liaison. From 2004-2012 she served as a Manager for the New Mexico Indian Affairs Department (IAD) and administered the Agency's capital outlay projects and the Tribal Infrastructure Fund, working in cooperation with New Mexico's tribal communities. She provided training and technical assistance in the areas of community infrastructure planning and development, implementation of capital outlay projects, and initiating legislative priorities. Martinez has over 40 years of experience working for tribal interests and started her foray into Indian Country in 1977 working with the Native American Rights Fund in operations and management. Martinez led the campaign and creation of the Pueblo of Jemez (1993-2004), Walatowa Visitor Center. She honed her development skills working at the Institute of American Indian Arts and the Southwestern Association on Indian Arts. She also served as the Executive Director of the American Indian Alaska Native Tourism Association (AIANTA), leading operations, fundraising, and programs including the American Indian Tourism Conference in 2010. Martinez received her Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration with an emphasis in Marketing from the University of Colorado at Boulder (1987). Martinez is of Hispanic heritage from Antonito, Colorado and grew up in Northern Utah.
